Call for Proposals on Measuring the Impossible

Planned Deadline – 1 February 2006

NEST
(New and Emerging Science and Technology)

Measurement is at the heart of scientific work. Science, business and government are presenting challenges intrinsically more complex, problematic and subject to interpretation.

This initiative aims to support interdisciplinary research and novel investigative methods that could present prospects for advancing the measurement of multidimensional phenomena which are mediated by human interpretation and/or perception.

Further information, including the official work programme, reference documents, and submission requirements, can be obtained via the NEST web site : www.cordis.lu/nest
